Meets and Passes Upon Some Important Matters.

The Board of Council held its regular meeting Friday night for unfinished business.

H. L. McPherson, Treasurer for 1911, was given his quietus. Further time was given in the settlement with J. D. Higgins, Tax Collector. Mr. Higgins was elected Delinquent Collector to wind up his own list of $6,000 for two years, and his compensation fixed at 25 per cent.

A proposal from Denny P. Smith as attorney for Mrs. Latham to compromise her litigation against the city was not acted upon.

An annexation ordinance was passed taking into the city the property of James Cate, on the north side of East Ninth street.

The Mayor was authorized to borrow $5,000 for the high school fund, pending a hitch in the recent bond issue.

Two steeplejacks were killed by a fall from a Philadelphia church.

UNIT BILL

Passes House With Vote of 3 to 1.

The Niles County Unit Bill was passed by the House of Representatives after sharp debate Friday, the final vote standing seventy to nineteen in favor of the measure. It was the first bill of any kind passed during the present session of the Legislature.

Representative Peter Lee Atherton, of Louisville, led the opposition. Other Democrats from the Louisville districts joined him.

Representative L. C. Owings representing Jefferson county, voted yes on the measure.

Two Republicans, Representatives John G. Stoll and Hiram Brown, voted against the county unit bill.

When the bill comes up in the Senate for final passage its supporters claim it will be voted through.

CAST DIE FOR WET OR DRY

All Day Meetings Held By Anti-Saloon Advocates There.

MADISONVILLE WILL VOTE.

Wets Claim They Will Win by 200, But Drys Are sanguine of Victory.

Madisonville, Ky., Jan. 22—All day meetings, participated in by both country and town citizens, are held in Madisonville by the anti-saloon advocates in the red hot prohibition campaign now being waged and which will come to a close tomorrow when a vote will be taken as to whether the licensed saloon shall return to Madisonville. Petitions have been pouring in from every town in the county, asking Madisonville voters to vote against the return of the saloon, and many farmers join in the all-day sessions held at the courthouse, on the streets and other places by the prohibition element.

The campaign to date has been bitterly contested by both sides, the "wets" making a quiet canvass for votes, and refraining from any public meetings, while the "drys" have been holding meetings every night. Both sides claim victory, the "wets" claiming that they will win by 200 while the "drys" are equally as confident that their majority will be in the neighborhood of 300.

Prominent speakers have been here during the past week assisting in the fight and for the big union service at the tabernacle Sunday night, all the churches joining in the services.

Wednesday, the date of the election, the ladies and children of the city are scheduled for a prominent part in the day's campaign for votes and song and prayer services will be held throughout the day.

Madisonville has been in the "dry" column for the past two years, voting "dry" at the election at that time by a majority of less than one hundred.

16 SOLONS ARE COMING

Joint Committee on Chairitable Institutions Will Inspect Asylums.

WILL BE THERE TOMORROW.

Personnel of The Two Committees Who Will Arrive To-night.

The joint committee of the Legislature will arrive tomorrow to inspect the Western Asylum. The committee was expected Saturday but wired that their visit had been postponed until Wednesday. Superintendent Sights had prepared a dinner for the solons and they missed a great treat in the culinary line. However, the same sort of a feast will be spread tomorrow. A number of prominent citizens have been invited by Dr. Sights to meet the committee during the day.

In addition to the members of the committee officers of the Senate and House and press correspondents are expected. The following are the members of the two committees:

Senate.

J. H. Durham, Chairman; Dr. C. W. Mathers, J. W. Berkshire, J. W. Biggerstaff, J. T. Pritchard, Dr. H. G. Sanders, C. Tierner.

House.

S. J. Collins, Chairman; Francis B. Douglas, L. B. Owen, C. D. McCrae, T. J. Gregory, D. W. Wiley, H. H. Rogers, A. V. Bertram, Hiram Brown.

Finest Head of Hair in Springfield Snipped While Asleep.

Springfield, Mass.—Miss Emily Wilson, eighteen, was reputed to possess the finest head of hair in Springfield. When she retired about 8:30 Wednesday night she arranged her hair, as had been her custom, in two long braids, which reached almost to her knees. A three-year-old brother slept in the same room and her parents in an adjoining room. A pedigree Boston bulldog lay in the hall. When Miss Wilson awoke next morning both braids of hair had vanished. The appearance of her head indicated that a sharp knife or razor had been used. Miss Wilson, her parents and the bulldog were not wakened; every door was locked, and every window securely fastened.

1,000 DEAD

Heavy Casualties in Fight Between Troops in Ecuador.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Jan. 21.—More than 1,000 men were killed and wounded in a battle Friday at Yaguach's, to the northeast of this city.

An army supporting the Quito government under the command of Gen. Julio Andrade, formerly Ecuadorian Minister to Colombia, attacked and defeated an army of Guayaquil troops supporting the provisional government, proclaimed by Gen. Montero under the command of Gen. Flavio Alfaro.

During the first fifteen days of January, the fire insurance companies of the country became liable for $15,000,000 in losses according to statistics prepared by a Hartford company. In the opinion of underwriters there had never been such a severe and steady drain on their resources for one month as the statistics for January will show.

The Chief Bureau of Fisheries advises that 2,000,000 pike or California perch, asked for are ready for shipment in tanks to the Eleventh Kentucky district. The fish will be distributed equally among the thirteen Eleventh district counties. They will join what remains of 2,000,000 rainbow trout sent to the Eleventh district last year.

District Attorney Fredericks who is prosecuting the dynamiters says: "My message to the people just now is simply this: The trial is an open one, and we are following it without any difficulty. We know where it will lead, but we cannot now state this. We know where we stand, and whoever is at the end of the trail will have to pay the penalty of his mistakes."

A boom for Judge Alton B. Parker in the Democratic "presidential non in tio" has been launched at Wilmington. The Parker boomers held a meeting at the State Capitol last night, which was attended by prominent party leaders. A statement issued at the close of the session declares that "every effort will be made to have the six delegates from Delaware to the Baltimore convention pledged to vote for Parker."

Acc-piling the Manhattan death rate as a basis for figuring, it will be found that of the approximately 90,000,000 people in the United States, 1,386,000 die each year. The Manhattan death rate averages about 15 4 a thousand, says the New York Tribune. The enormous sum of at least $207,900,000 is spent by the people of this country every year for burying their dead. This is based on $150 a funeral, acknowledged by undertakers to be a conservative estimate.

The herds of Elks that are protected in Yellowstone Park are gentle from contact with people. In winter they leave the Park in search of better pastures in the lower levels and are killed with ruthless slaughter by Montana pot hunters, as Montana's game laws do not protect the beautiful half-domesticated creatures. At the depot at Gardiner, the very entrance to the Park, 42 Elks were recently piled up for shipment at one time that had left the Park and been killed. The same day 22 were shipped at Livingston, and from three to a dozen at several way stations.

CHICKENS RIDE

COWS AND SHEEP

Fowls Show Cleverness in Getting Out of Snow And Keeping Warm.

Oakland City, Ind., Jan. 19.—Using the cows as means of transportation from one feeding place to another and making the sheep do service as warming devices, the chickens on the farm of S. W. Melton, well-known farmer of this city, have certainly set a mark in wisdom for the Indiana chicken.

Mr. Melton has two feeding sheds, some distance apart. Of course the snow is deep between the two sheds, and a chicken abhors the snow. Watching their opportunity and seeing a cow start from one shed to another, the chickens hop aboard her back and ride across the dreary waste to the feeding ground at the other shed. With the pangs of hunger satisfied, the chickens turn from the cows and getting upon the back of a sheep, bury their feet in the wool and nestle contentedly for hours at a time.

Mr. Melton has been watching the actions of the chickens with much amusement for several days.

The sheep offer no objections to the chickens making a roost of their backs, but the cows attempt to shake them off when they climb aboard their backs for the ride from one shed to another.

A Circus Cheetah

By Isola Forrester

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

"A cheetah," said Murray pleasantly, "is the pet of kings and rajahs and nabobs and the other classy gentry of the far east. Ever see one?"

"I'm not sure," little Sammy Clancy answered.

The two showmen were on the train en route to join others of the tent family to show in Philadelphia.

Clancy was new to the circus business. He had appeared out of the west without warning and had bought out the Rawlings and Wells Oriental hippodrome on wheels, so to speak. Both Rawlings and Wells had decamped for New York without specifying their intentions as soon as the transfer was made, and the new owner had appeared simultaneously and had picked up the reins on the runaway outfit and stopped the danger.

He was a very polite, low-voiced chap, about thirty, smooth shaven, dark, with a slow, boyish smile and a steady eye. The show people liked him at sight, and within a week respected him. He did not yell at them nor use large language. As Murray expressed it after a personal experience:

"He's an ultimate conclusion. So and so's the case, and there you are, and what are you going to do about it? He's a wise little boy, and he's my boss and the rest of the show's, too."

"There are several in this country," went on Murray. "Some of the parks have them. But they all seem dispirited. I never saw but one live one. You don't know any of the old timers, do you? Haven't been in the business long?"

"Not so very long," said Sammy. "This happened nearly eight years ago, just about the time small circuses began to lose their popularity on account of vaudeville packing the theaters and getting the best acts. One of the last to give up was old Pop Atkins. By jove, he trotted over his old circuit with the same old elephants and wagons and animals that he'd been giving them for years. His wife died that year, but he didn't care. They'd trained the daughter, Clover, to take her place, and she took better than the old lady."

He Had That Animal-Like a Tame Kitten Around Him.

Sammy evinced a fresh interest. "Good looking?"

"More than that, son, more than that. She was the $10,000 beauty, all right. None of your little sawed-off soubrettes! Slim and fair, she was, and graceful—why, Lord Harry, you should have seen her ride a horse we had. It would walk on its eyelids if she lifted her whip. But the cheetah loved her best. Pop used to beat it and poke it playfully with a hot iron, and so on. Once when it didn't mind him he stuck the lighted end of a cigar on the tip of its nose. Oh, yes, Pop was surely playful."

"Were you with him then?" asked Sammy.

"I was—up to two weeks before it happened. Then Pop and I had a gentlemanly difference of opinion, and I went east. He used to whip the girl the way he had her mother. She'd fight back, but it wasn't any use, and I interfered. Well, he was her father, and there you were. And she was too proud to have him arrested and testify against him. So after I'd pounded Pop and relieved my feelings and been declined by Clover, I left the show. She was working up an act with the cheetah then. You know what they look like, bigger than a leopard and not so crafty. They train them for hunting over in Persia and India. This one was trained to hate the hand that struck him. So it laid for Pop."

"Who took care of it?" asked Sammy lazily.

"A kid Pop had sent for from the show where he bought it down at Coney Island. He wasn't good for anything around the show, but he had that animal like a tame kitten around him. He and Clover had all the care of it, for the old fellow was asleep most of the time. One day it got loose. I heard about it from a pal of mine who stayed up for the season. It was about two, as the show was breaking up for a new town, and the cheetah got out and calmly strolled down the main street in the moonlight. It seemed amused and interested, but when a principal citizen got busy with a shooting iron it jumped at him and chewed his shoulder. Then this youngster went after

it. But it had scared him and was feeling mighty shy. It only cuffed at the boy, but it held him out, and sat at Clover's head the row and ran out of her tent and down the street after it. And that, she had best, little classic business with a pretty bukie on it—you know the kind girls wear—and she put that around his neck and led it back to its wagon. How's that? Plucky? yes. While the boys were hanging back with pitchforks and nets and hot irons."

"Another time it had toothache and they got a dentist in, and she made him give it an anesthetic. Little things, but they made that heathen cheetah animal love the girl as if it had been a pet cat."

"Pop was thinking of selling out along this time, and the prospective buyer came on from Kansas City to look the show over. Instead, he looked Clover over, and spoke to Pop. Intentions? I don't know anything about them, son. If he had any good ones he certainly kept them out of sight. But he made Clover the bonus in the business deal and he bought the outfit that night. 'Long about 12.30 he comes out of Pop's quarters and makes for Clover. She hadn't gone to bed. She was over at the cheetah's wagon talking to it and to the kid. It was moonlight, those nights in August when the moon comes up like a great flame-colored blossom, and they were in Kentucky, near the Ohio border. The kid was playing on a mouth organ, real soft and decent, when the big chap came over, took hold of Clover's arm and told her what the deal was."

"When Clover screamed Pop himself came out and tried to reason with her. She was to go on that night to Kansas City and marry the fellow there and then back to the show. Pop said he was sick and tired of the whole show business and was going abroad to seek a long-deserved rest from his labors. And he struck her with one of those short whips they use on the animals when they lift their upper lips and growl."

There was a brief silence. The train was speeding along at fifty miles an hour. Sammy stared out of the smoker window contentedly, interestedly, and watched the landscape of New Jersey take wings to itself and roll up like the scroll of a parchment.

"Then what?" he said finally.

"The kid let the cheetah loose," said Murray slowly. "And when the two of them grabbed her and tried to carry her off it leaped on their backs. That's about all I know. Pop left the hospital five months later with scars that he'll bear all his life and the other fellow lost one arm. That cheetah was a discriminating animal. It died from a bullet Pop managed to land right finally; but it had done its work well. And the other two skipped out that night, the kid and Clover. I always thought they made for where her mother's folks lived, in Indiana somewhere."

"That's just what they did," broke in Sammy happily. "And the folks down there was good to them. They let the kid work around the farm, and Clover got well and pretty, instead of looking like a wax candle most of the time. They lived there up to a year ago. It was a pretty good farm. You haven't seen Mrs. Clancy, have you? Mrs. Sammy Clancy? No? I thought not. She's going to meet us in Philadelphia tonight. She still likes the business, somehow. I guess it's just because she's Clover, and I'm that kid that looked after the cheetah."

IN THE CAUSE OF MORE PIE

Traveler Made His Protest, and the Result Was Both Prompt and Effective.

An intimate friend of Frank Seaman was spending a summer out in the mountains of British Columbia. On one occasion he wrote Frank that he expected to move his camp in a few weeks and take a certain route, by water and rail, to another part of the mountains. By return mail, he received a letter from Mr. Seaman saying, "Don't take that route. Take the train to — and from there the boat to —. Stop off at — and stay there a while. They make the best pie at the hotel there that was ever made on this earth. Don't fail to put yourself in line with it."

Mr. Seaman's fondness for pie assumes, at times, serious forms. When traveling in British Columbia himself he spent some time at one of the large hotels belonging to the Canadian Pacific Railway company. The service in those hotels is excellent, but Mr. Seaman was not satisfied with the size of the pieces of pie. He argued the case briefly with the various waiters, but got no satisfactory results. Also he stated his convictions to the manager of the hotel, but that functionary was not altogether a free agent and could make no change. In the pursuit of pie, however, Mr. Seaman cannot be baffled. Shortly before dinner one day he telegraphed the general manager of the C. P. R. at Montreal that the slivers of pie which were served were not adequate to the rest of the scenery. The message flew across the continent and at dinner that evening Mr. Seaman's waiter obsequiously set before him a large half moon of pie. From that time on there were no further complaints.

A Light Support.

"What is it, do you suppose, that keeps the moon in place and prevents it from falling?" asked Araminta.

"I think it must be the beams," replied Charlie, softly.—Sheburne Falls Messenger

Richest Bride.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Given in marriage by her son in the presence of only thirty guests, one of whom was the President of the United States, Mrs. Lucretia Roberts Cromwell, widow of the late Oliver Eaton Cromwell, banker and clubman, yesterday became the richest bride in America. One gift of the bridegroom, Edward T. Stotesbury, who is affiliated in business with J. Pierpont Morgan, was securities valued at $4,000,000. Other gifts, diamonds, pearls, emeralds, and rubies, are worth $2,000,000 more.

The bride is a brunette, gracious in manner and popular among the matrons of Washington. She has three children and is between 40 and 45 years of age.

Don't let the baby suffer from eczema, sores or any itching of the skin. Doan's Ointment gives instant relief, cures quickly. Perfectly safe for children. All druggists sell it.

Miss Nunn Engaged.

The engagement of Miss Virginia Nunn, of Frankfort, to Mr. Geo. M. Eady is announced. The wedding will take place in the early spring.

Parson's Poem a Gem.

Preacher Weds.

Rev. C. C. Daves, pastor of the Baptist Church at Auburn, Ky., and Miss Mal Woodford Hall, of the same place, were married yesterday afternoon.

Never can tell when you'll mash a finger or suffer a cut, bruise, burn or scald. Be prepared. Dr. Chamberlain's Electric Oil instantly relieves the pain—quickly cures the wound.

THREE THINGS YOU NEED..

First—

"Kentuckian"

A virile, newsworthy newspaper with the interest of the entire community at heart. Issues of the day are handled without fear or favor. You will find in this paper an up-to-date department for each member of the family. Clean, honest, straightforward—it is a paper your family should not be without.

Second—

Technical World Magazine

Is the one magazine that not only entertains in a fascinating manner, but which also instructs. It is the magazine for the busy business man, or for the person who wants to kill away a leisurely afternoon, and be agreeably informed at the same time. It is profusely illustrated, and tells in a simple and interesting way of the discoveries of scientists, the achievements of inventors, the feats of engineers and explorers, and the opening of every new field of human endeavor. What Jack London says: "I have just changed upon my first copy of TECHNICAL WORLD MAGAZINE. There isn't anything like it. I want more, and I cannot wait for them to come, so I am sending you a check for which please enter my subscription and send me immediately the last two years' back numbers."

Third—

A Fine Atlas

This one is just off the presses. This is the year to obtain a new atlas. The 1910 Census has just been completed, this atlas contains the official figures. 128 pages of 2 color maps brought right down to date—every map giving the results of the most recent surveys. All railroads are shown and named and maps of all large cities are included. There are 21 double page maps showing in detail portions of the U. S. and Canada. Dimensions 10 1/2" x 13 1/2". Bound in heavy plate paper. Sells regularly for $3.00. A splendid gift.

ALL THREE
Only $3.80

Special arrangement with Technical World Magazine and the publishers of this Atlas make this offer possible. But it is very strictly limited. You must act immediately.

In 1912 You Will Elect a President

THIS election is of supreme importance to you. The whole country is divided. On one side the progressive insurgents, on the other, the Conservative Standpaters. Both parties will promise many things. You will have to judge their claims and their fitness to carry them out. In these stirring times is a necessity to the busy man or woman who values being up to date. In a hundred ways its editorial, its character sketches and its timely articles will help you make your choice. It gives you the best, clearest and most accurate, non-partisan and unprejudiced news that money can buy. It is the great monthly newspaper on which intelligent people everywhere rely for their news, and you get this news almost as promptly as it is given in the great daily newspapers of the country.

THE AMERICAN REVIEW OF REVIEWS

Senator La Follette says: "The most useful, accurate, and impartial review of the day. I have read it for many years and it is the most valuable source of information."

Never will the Review of Reviews be more necessary than next year

The American Boy

is a moral dynamo—a magazine devoted exclusively to the whole boy—a magazine that imbues the boy with high morals, honor and manliness. 500,000 boys are now enthusiastic readers every month.

contains stories of the things boys like to read about—adventure, travel, history, photography, stamps, electricity, car-boutry, sports, current events, etc., all beautifully illustrated. And a department devoted to the Boy Scouts of America, to which Ernest Thompson Seton, Chief Scout, contributes a illustrated page each month. It is the best magazine for boys in all the world.

Give it to your boy! $1 for a whole year.

POSITIVE PROOF

Should Convince the Greatest Skeptic in Hopkinsville.

Because it's the evidence of a Hopkinsville citizen.

Testimony easily investigated,
The strongest endorsement of merit.

The best proof. Read it.

Miss L. A. Heister, 417 Cleveland St., Hopkinsville, Ky., says: "I believe there is little need of any one suffering from backache when such an effective remedy as Doan's Kidney Pills can be had. The prompt and thorough relief which followed their use in my case has given me great faith in their merits."

In the summer of 1908, I suffered from soreness and lameness across the small of my back and other difficulties arising from weak kidneys. The contents of two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from L. A. Johnsons and Co's. Pharmacy, was all that was required to free me from the distressing pain in my back and restore my kidneys to a normal condition. I publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills at that time and although four years have since elapsed, I still hold a high opinion of them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Also Overlooked by Carnegie.

Paducah, Ky., Jan. 19.—Six times in his life Charles P. Rodgers, an eccentric character, faced the wedding altar, but he lived to survive his half-dozen spouses. Rodgers died at his home here after a long illness. He was born in Holland, and never told anybody his age, but he was about 69 years old. Rodgers' last wife died about seven years ago.

Had Fingers Crossed.

Because the star witness for the defense in the divorce case of Helen Damitrov against Philip Damitrov had his fingers crossed while his hand was raised to be sworn in Judge William K. Amick's division of the St. Joseph, Mo., Circuit court a new trial of the case will be asked for by Mrs. Damitrov. The court gave the husband a decree on his cross-bill.

The most far-reaching railroad rate regulation measure ever offered in the Legislature was that introduced in the Senate and House Friday. It is the work of Laurence B. Finn, chairman of the Kentucky Railroad Commission, who spent several weeks in drafting the bill. It is very comprehensive and supplements the McChord anti-railroad extortion bill passed in 1900. One of the triumphs of Mr. Finn is that the railroads as well as the shippers have agreed on the measure and it is expected to become a law at this session of the General Assembly. Sweeping changes are made in the law regulating joint rates and demurrage charges, and it is the claim of the author that the rights of the shippers are safeguarded at every point.

Attorney General Wickersham's next move will be against the Har-vvard Street.

Geo. W. Landrum has sold the Livingston Banner to Perry G. Mc-
Lenn, of Murray.

The time has come to spread the

Atlanta's terror to negro women,
"Jack the Ripper," has just left his fifteenth victim with her throat cut
on the street. His operations began last summer.

People at Princeton, Ind., claim to have heard it thunder the other day
during a snowstorm. Queer things happen in Indiana. There are people there half expecting to be struck
by lightning in the approaching presidential conventions.

A Chicago schoolgirl who had
whooping cough gave a whooping
party, inviting several of her friends
who also had the disease and all
whooped together until even the dog
caught the spirit of the occasion and
barked when the girls coughed.

Ollie James' home folks gave him

night, covers being laid for 150.
Judge J. W. Blue was toastmaster
and speeches were made by Virgil
Y. Moore, former Senator W. J. De-
boe, Judge T. J. Nunn and Senator-elect James. Another and bigger banquet is to be given the new Senator in Frankfort this week.

Senator A. B. Cummins, of Iowa, Progressive Republican, has announced his candidacy for President.
Senator W. M. Crane, of Massachusetts, anti-Taft leader, conferred in New York with Col. Roosevelt Saturday. Postmaster General Hitchcock is busy securing Southern delegates opposed to Taft and has a so-
been hovering about Oyster Bay.
The plot thickens in Republican circles.

Representative L. B. Herrington
has introduced a bill to investigate
the methods of the Board of Health
and especially the "machine" alleged
to be operated by Dr. J. N. McCormack, who is charged with naming 357 county health officers without consulting the State Board of Health.
Mr. Herrington says he is trying to ascertain if there is a machine and to curtail the power of Dr. McCormack, who has held the position of Secretary of the Board for 30 odd years.

The Duke of Connaught, aged 61,
only surviving son of Queen Victoria,
and uncle of George V., will arrive
with his wife and daughter, Princess Patricia, this week and be entertained at dinner by Whitelaw Reid in New York in advance of any call upon the President at Washington. The capital is stirred up over what is not only a breach of etiquette, but an act of discourtesy to the whole United States. It is announced that no sort of courtesies will be shown
to the royal visitors who left their manners at home.

Dr. Piner Quits Ministry.

Dr. Walker K. Piner, well known

ministry and is now engaged in the practice of law. He is located at Tampa, Florida. Dr. Piner was at one time pastor of the Methodist church in this city.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

A mercury will surely destroy the sense
of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions
from reputable physicians, as the damage
they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J.
Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no
mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine.
It is taken internally and made in

Stanley to Speak.

Representative A. O. Stanley has accepted an invitation from New York E'ks to make an address on February 17 in the metropolis at a banquet to be given on the occasion
of the celebration of the forty-fourth anniversary of the order. The banquet will be held in the Waldorf-Astoria. Mr. Stanley and Senator Chamberlain, of Oregon, both of whom have been so earnest within the past few days in advocating an effective State-wide primary law for Kentucky, will be fellow-speakers
on the occasion. The other speaker will be Gov. John K. Tener, of Pennsylvania, who would not recognize a primary if it were shoved
under his nose.

Shuster Heard From.

W. M. Shuster has arrived in Vienna from Persia and says: The net result of the British and Russian
action in Persia renders a nation,
which was making progress toward
peace and order and was building up its finances for the establishment of a constitutional government, a land
of chaos and anarchy, without
prestige among its own people, and,
in addition, has meant the sacrifice
of hundreds of innocent lives.

Fish Frozen.

Mr. C. S. McElroy, of Fredonia,
reports finding several fish frozen in his stock pond. He observed them
in a hole in the ice cut to afford water to his stock. He found two one day and eighteen the day. Some of them were frozen in the ice with
their noses nearly through.—Princeton Leader.

Denied Their Child.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Garrett, of Chattanooga, remarried after a separation of several years, have been denied the possession of their child, sent to an orphan's home when their home was broken up. The matron refused to give it up and
the court sustained her position.

Hunting South Pole.

Far away among the snowstorms
and blizzards of the Antarctic, five expeditions are engaged in exploration, two with the expressed intention of finding the South Pole.
What success they have achieved
nobody knows. The news about them is neither recent nor clear.

Revival Services.

Rev E. B. Landis, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will go to Marion to-day to secure a singer
for the evangelistic services, which he expects to begin next Sunday morning. If he secures the singer, Rev. Mr. Clift, the services will be held, beginning as above.

Charge Not Sustained.

W. J. Moore, colored, was brought into police court yesterday on a charge of house-breaking, preferred
by W. E. Penn, col., and the charge
was dismissed for lack of evidence.
Moore was arrested in Nashville and
brought here last week.

Owensboro Church Row.

The Owensboro Church row goes merrily on. Rev. C. C. Carroll the deposed pastor of the Third Baptist Church, preached at the Courthouse
Sunday afternoon, after refusing to preach by invitation of the deacons
in his former pulpit.

Breathing of Chickens.

Chickens breathe 8,278 cubic feet
of air in twenty-four hours for every one thousand pounds of live weight,
while men require only 2,833 cubic feet and cattle but 2,304. Hence for poultry ventilation is a matter of first importance.

Sold at Ten Cents Round.

The enterprising agricultural
farm of Giles & Williams, Howell,
have sold to W. S. Mathews & Sons,
New York, their entire crop of tobacco consisting of forty thousand pounds at ten cents a pound.

Struck For 50 Cents.

The seamstresses of Paris to the number of 500 have struck for a raise to 50 cents for a ten-hour day's work. Some of them are now paid
as low as 10 cents.

never without a bottle of your liniment,
have brought more of it than any other
remedy for pain."

"Sloan's Liniment is the best made. I have removed very large shoe boils off a horse with it. I have killed a quarter crick on a mare that was awfully bad. I have also healed raw, sore necks on three horses. I have healed greasy heel on a mare that could hardly walk."

Popular Mechanics Magazine For February.

The intensive methods which have become a feature of every modern industry react upon the mind and stimulate to prodigious effort the ranks of humankind, from the most humbly talented to those endowed
with the most extraordinary genius.
A remarkable prolificacy in invention and scientific investigation is the immediate and tangible result, the tendency ever being to render existence less laborious but more complex. The diverse phenomena of the creative mind supplies Popular Mechanics Magazine with abundant
interesting material each month, so
that its 154 pages of reading matter
teem with marvels which a few centuries ago would have been classed
with witchcraft and the miraculous.
In the February number of the Magazine appear 262 articles, every one "written so you can understand
it," and 291 unusual illustrations.
Victor Loughheed, a renowned authority on aeronautics, contributes
an article on "Bringing the Flying Machine Down to Earth," in which
he clearly defines the present status
of the aeroplane and indicates its lines of development for the future.

TWO DEATHS LAST SATURDAY

Mr. W. H. Shanklin, Aged Citizen, Passes Away at Eighty-two.

Mr. Wm. H. Shanklin died Saturday morning at his home in this city
of locked bowels. He was taken with the fatal attack four days before and nothing could afford relief.

Mr. Shanklin was born near Fairview Jan. 29, 1830, and was almost 82 years of age. He lived at Fairview until 1893 when he moved to Hopkinsville and worked at the carpenter's trade and later was in the monumental business until his health failed and he was forced to retire from active business. On Feb. 23, 1911, he arose from his bed
to find that he had been stricken
blind in his sleep and since that time
he could barely distinguish between daylight and darkness, and was totally helpless.

Mr. Shanklin was a consistent member of the Cumberland Presbyterian church and a member of the Masonic fraternity. Four children survive him, Mr. W. E. Shanklin, Mrs.
J. S. Barnett, Mrs. J. Will Carroll
and Misses Mollie and Ada Shanklin.
The burial took place Sunday in Riverside cemetery with Masonic honors.

Miss Alice Long Dead.

Miss Alice Long, daughter of the late W. R. Long, died Saturday morning following an operation for appendicitis performed Wednesday
by an Evansville surgeon. She had been ill for two weeks. She was 19 years old and a member of Westminster Presbyterian church. One sister and four brothers survive her.
The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon from the home of her sister, Mrs. J. Miller Clark.

$3.50 Recipe Free For Weak Men.

Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for
nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood,
failing memory and lame back, brought on by
excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous
men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man
who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope, to any man who will write me for it.
This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and I am convinced it is the surest acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.
I think I owe it to my fellow men to send them
a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere
who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop digging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest-acting restorative, up-building, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure
himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 3715 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain, ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors
would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing
out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

EVANSVILLE AND EAST ST. LOUIS

Offered Fulton and Harrisburg Places.

The City meeting of the Kitty League was held Sunday and was transferred to Evansville and proved to be very important.

The members of the league present at the meeting were M. J. Farnbacher of Cairo; President C. C. Gosnell of Vincennes; N. F. Dortch, vice president of the league, Hopkinsville; Alfred Levy, business manager of the Paducah club, and Jake Zimbro of Henderson.

Reorganization of the Kitty league is to include East St. Louis, Ill., and Evansville as new cities to succeed Harrisburg and Fulton. The other six cities in the league last year to be retained. They are Cairo, Clarksville, Hopkinsville, Paducah, Vincennes and Henderson.

East St. Louis was discussed at the meeting as a prospect for a berth in the Kitty succeeding Fulton, which it was positively settled, will not be in that organization next season. Harrisburg has already been dropped.

East St. Louis is a city of about 60,000. The Kitty magnates hope that city's addition to the circuit because of its size, will make a Kitty berth more acceptable to Evansville.

With Evansville and East St. Louis represented in the league the Kitty circuit would advance to the ranks of Class C Baseball. National commission rules give this class to circuits where the total population of its towns reaches 200,000.

Evansville has the matter under advisement and East St. Louis will be visited by M. J. Farnbacher to see how the situation is there. Another meeting will be held soon.

The Kitty season will close on Labor day; it was decided by unanimous vote. The schedule shall call for not more than within six of 100 games. The season will open the latter part of May.

President C. C. Gosnell sprung a surprise when he announced emphatically he would no longer continue as head of the league. Mr. Gosnell explained that other business matters would prevent him from figuring in baseball at Vincennes any more at all.

Election of officers and naming the salary limit were deferred until the next meeting.

Pension Figures.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—Pensions totaling $281,457 were paid last year by the subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporation, according to announcement made here today. Among other subsidiary companies, the following paid out the amounts indicated: American Steel & Wire Co., $86,536; Illinois Companies, $16,158; Carnegie Steel Co., $31,505; Marquette Range, $4,015.

WEST STRONG FOR WOODROW WILSON

Rank and File of the Party in That Great Section Recognize His Worth.

HAS REDEEMED HIS PLEDGES

His Actions as Chief Executive of the State of New Jersey. Show His Political Ability and Integrity—Loyal to People.

BY CHARLES G. HEIFNER, Chairman of Democratic State Committee of Washington.

I know pretty accurately the sentiment of the rank and file of the democrats of the West. They are strongly in favor of Woodrow Wilson for our Presidential nominee next year. I feel sure that this statement will hold good in every state west of the Mississippi River. I recently spent some time in the east, on business, that brought me in touch with a number of influential business men. Incidentally I have had occasion to discuss political conditions with these men and I am glad to say that, regardless of past party affiliations, I find them strongly in favor of Governor Wilson. It is not difficult to ascertain the cause of this faith and trust and confidence on the part of farmers, wage workers and business men in the political ability and integrity of Woodrow Wilson. He kept the faith. A year ago while a candidate for Governor of New Jersey he made certain pledges and promises to the people of that trust ridden state. The people took him at his word and elected him, the first democrat to be elected Governor in that state in sixteen years, and to the gratifying amazement of all honest men and to the utter consternation of the political tricksters and his loyal supporters in the legislature proceeded to enact laws and carry out plans in exact conformity with his pledged word to the people. Among the plain people everywhere he has come to be regarded as a man whose performances square with his promises. Just such a man is imperatively needed as the chief executive of the United States. Having demonstrated his practical capacity to accomplish things in his own state, though one branch of the legislature was of opposite political faith, it is not surprising that there is such an overwhelming demand for his elevation to the White House.

All Favor Wilson.
I believe the State of Washington will send a delegation to the next Democratic National Convention favorable to Governor Wilson for our presidential candidate, and I might say further that I believe he is the only democrat who can get the electoral vote of that state, and other Western States. We democrats out there are not unmindful of the merit consideration which other great democrats are receiving at the hands of their fellow citizens throughout the country, but we believe Governor Wilson, more nearly than any other avowed candidate, typifies in his record and his personality, those qualities and characteristics which the average American is proud to see exemplified in the President of his country. Hence, his popularity in the East, the West, the North and the South. His record as a scholar, an educator, an historian and as student and writer on social and economic subjects all combine to equip him to be just what he is today—a finished orator, a great statesman and our logical leader in solving the great industrial and financial questions which now disturb the business world, and which the republican party has proved itself incapable either to understand or to solve. Governor Wilson is progressive in that he is not wedded to the midwived past or to precedent to such an extent as to make him timid and afraid to meet the demands of the present hour. I am for him because he stands for genuine representative government—the actual rule of the people after careful consideration of all governmental matters coming before them. He would free trade and commerce of the imposts and handicaps with which they are now burdened. He would place on the statute books a law regulating inter-state commerce so clear, so concise, so just and so definite that all men and all corporations would not be left in doubt as to whether they were complying with or violating the law. He would thus place our industrial affairs upon a solid and legitimate foundation, freed from uncertainty and distrust.

In his record as Governor of New Jersey he has literally lived up to and exemplified in his every act the time honored tenet of democracy: "Equal rights for all, special privileges to none."
He will bring to the discharge of his duties as chief magistrate of the nation, the right scholarship of a Bancroft, a Lowell and a Hawthorne, all of whom held political office; he will have had the experience that comes from practical administration and executive responsibilities, and in every respect he will worthily rank with those other great leaders of democracy whose achievements make brighter and more glorious the pages of American history. These are some of the reasons why I am for him and why the American people are for him.

First Brought Out in One of Johnson's Plays When Actor Delivers Panegyric.

The solace of most men and a few women was first brought upon the stage in this country by Ben Johnson in "Every Man in His Humor," in which Captain Bobadil appears smoking a pipe, in company with others addicted to the same practice, and who are contentiously styled in the stage direction "a rout of stinkards." Bobadil is made to break out into the following high-flown panegyric of the weed: "Sir, believe me on my relation for what I tell you, the world shall not reprove. I have been in the Indies, where this herb grows, and where neither myself nor a dozen gentlemen more of my knowledge have received the taste of any other nutriment in the world for the space of nine-and-twenty weeks, but the fume of this simple only. Therefore, it cannot be, but it is most divine, especially your Trinidad. Your Nicotian is good, too. I do hold it, and will affirm it before any prince in Europe, to be the most sovereign and most precious weed that ever the earth tendered to the use of man."—Dundee Advertiser.

WAS A SENSITIVE BOARDER

Landlady's Innocent Remark Is Taken Seriously by Hypersensitive Young Man.

"When a man is down, he is unduly sensitive. He takes for slurs and insults what are really the most innocent remarks."

The speaker, Henry E. Dixey, was commiserating with a New York playwright who had just had another failure.

"Cheer up, my boy," said Mr. Dixey. "You're as hypersensitive as the boarder who cut his throat with the bread knife."

"This boarder, finding the coffee rather muddy one morning, said to his landlady:

"What is the matter with the coffee, madam?"

"The landlady looked at him and in perfect innocence replied:

"It is very slow in settling."

"Then the boarder, whose bill was seventeen weeks behind, slew himself with the bread knife."

ENGLAND'S DECLINE.

Doctor Inge, the new dean of St. Paul's cathedral, London, paints a rather dark future for England. He says:

During the nineteenth century the United Kingdom collected a population of 46,000,000 people on two small islands. That was done while Englishmen were making England the workshop of the world. But England's coal supply is being exhausted with criminal recklessness; labor is no longer very good and is becoming extremely dear. The twentieth century is spendthrift heir to the nineteenth. When Englishmen cease to outwork and outsell other nations they must emigrate or starve. America in the future will be the center of the world's commerce, when the British fleet ceases to patrol the sea about Australia and New Zealand the yellow man, who is satisfied with a third of an Englishman's wages, will make short work of the trades unionists.

BARRED.

She was not in the least pretty, but of course that counted for nothing against her.

Likewise the fact that she could not dance or sing or crack jokes.

What stood definitely in the way of her success was the political situation in Europe.

"With not a monarchy left which a girl can hope to be instrumental in overthrowing, where is the necessary advertising to come from?" she reasoned. Saying which, with a gush of bitter tears, she abandoned the notion of getting into vaudeville in America.—Puck.

SUCCESSFUL AVIATOR.

"He's never been much of a success as an aviator, has he?"

"Why do you say that?"

"He's never broke any records."

"True, but he's been flying for two years now and hasn't spent more than two months in the hospital."

AND THEY FAIL

"Why do you put so many matches in your pocket?"

"For my friends. They all carry electric cigar lighters."

His Apprenticeship

By Donald Allen

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

Mr. John Degraw, the sturdy, steady old broker and banker, sat in the library of his office at home waiting for his son Perry to come in for an interview. Perry was a young man of twenty-eight, and there had been interviews in the past—many interviews. They had been held for Perry's benefit, but he had not seemed to benefit thereby.

"This was to be a sort of farewell interview. Not that the father expected to die soon, or expected his son to die, or intended to turn him outdoors, but he had been saying up some vigorous opinions for a year past which were to be delivered on this occasion.

It may be said of Mr. Perry, Degraw that he had an income—he belonged to three clubs—he thought he was fast—he had been abroad, and he was no master. In spite of all he could do to be a tremendous fellow, he was considered to have principles and to be harmless. Perry was not a college graduate. He had developed no talent for business or a profession. He was just taking things easy and getting ready to shoot tigers in India and elephants in Africa. The father had fretted and fumed more, or less, but there had been no change.

Enter the son for the interview. The father sat with a stern look on his face.

"Oh, now, governor, I say, don't greet a fellow this way," said Perry, who had on his English morning suit and was speaking to match the checks.

"Son," said the father after a long look at him, "you are an ass!"

"I love, governor!"

"A silly ass, Perry!"

"You can't mean it!"

"Five times; ten times over. You are a cipher. You have a cabbage head on your shoulders. You would not know enough to come in when it rained if a policeman didn't give you a shove."

"Am I too fast, governor?" asked the astonished Perry.

"Too fast! Why, son, you don't know the meaning of the word. You couldn't be fast. You were never drunk in your life. You never had over two cocktails in an evening. You never won or lost over $5 on a horse race. The newspapers never refer to you as a high roller."

"But, Governor, the fellows all say—"

"It know it. They all say that you are a would-be, but you haven't the brains to blossom out. Sorry for you, son—mighty sorry. I know just how you must feel."

"But this isn't fair, doncher know," protested Perry.

"There you go with another of your sap-headed words! Lord, but what an empty pate! You spent three months in London, and you came back with English clothes and English 'donchers.' Does an Englishman go back home from the States to ape us and make a fool of himself?"

"That's a new one on me, Governor. I must get that off at the club. Is the interview at an end?"

"Almost. I just want to say that the other day you quite finished your career as a braying ass. It has come to my ears that you made a wager with another of your ilk that you would have the widow Strong in love with you within a year."

"Yes, Governor—a bet of ten dollars," complacently replied the son.

"And you have never even been introduced to her!"

"Never, Gov."

"By thunder, but you are forty fools rolled into one! What's a father to do with such an offspring?"

"Oh, I'll win the wager all right. Got me little plan all worked out. It's tremendous, Gov.—positively tremendous. You will be surprised when it unfolds. You will discover that your son Perry has brains after all. I love you'll put me on the back after it's all over!"

The father turned away and looked out of the window for a moment, and then quietly said:

"Perry, we have never had a fool in the family that I have heard of, and I don't like the idea. It seems that I must put up with it, however. Do this much for me, please. Don't be just a common fool, but go in for the hope with somebody's wife. Kill three or four people with your auto. Start for the north pole. Go about with a hobble skirt on. If you'll go in to be the biggest fool in America I'll furnish you all the money you can make use of it."

Sorry, Gov.—sorry—but I can't do it, ye know," was the reply. "Got my little plans to look out for. Would like to oblige, but must decline. No hard feelings, I hope. Thanks for your kind wishes. Bye-bye."

Mr. Perry Degraw lived at his clubs and appeared at his father's mansion only at intervals. Sometimes he was seen only once a month. On this occasion he disappeared after the interview, and it was weeks before he was heard of again. There was a report that he was investigating the Panama canal, but it was not considered reliable. No one worried about him, however.

The widow Strong owned and occupied a manor house forty miles from the city. She was still a young woman, a member of the best society, and wealthy. One afternoon, as her auto was brought to the door that she might proceed to a village four or five miles away, she made the discovery that her chauffeur was intoxicated. He was discharged on the spot, and just as a young man who looked to be a walking student came along. He saw the situation and offered his services. He claimed to have experience, and after some hesitation was engaged to run the auto for the trip. The results were twofold. The widow had heard of Perry Degraw's wager, and she believed she recognized the young man in the stranger who had arrived at the opportune moment. He was therefore engaged to act as chauffeur, gardener and man of all work.

It was plain that the new man knew all about an auto. Quite sure of his identity, the widow did as any other woman would have done. She kept him at work from morning till night. She found fault on all occasions. The cook was bidden to keep an eye on him, and he was treated a little worse than the average hired man. He bore everything without complaint and did his best to please. After a couple of weeks he dropped his "ye knows" and his "donchers," and he no longer struck tremendous attitudes. The change in him was noticed even by the cook.

The new man, who called himself Hopkins, and was familiarly known to the servants as "Hop," came to the manor house in midsummer. He was still there as winter set in. Not a word or a look had betrayed the fact that he was not Hopkins. The widow now felt sure, but she was simply a bit interested. Perhaps if something were to happen—

And one midwinter day Perry Degraw found his father in the library again. His arrival had not been expected. In his surprise the father looked up and said:

"Why, son, where did you leave it?"

"Down in the country, gov. Been a hired man for the Widow Strong ever since that basting you gave me."

"Why, you fool, did you go down there and—"

"Gently, gov. Stuck in a snowdrift four days ago in the auto. Mighty cold. Snow three feet deep. Widow freezing to death. Chauffeur carries her a mile in his arms and saves her precious life. She revives. Says she has known his identity all along. Says he is some fool, but not all fool. Says she rather likes him. Says it may come off in about three months. Wants to know, as I do, if you have anything to say about it."

The father hadn't. He simply reached out his hand for a shake.

STATUS OF SOUTH AMERICA

Too Little Is Known of the Republics of Chili, Brazil and Argentina.

"It is a mystery to me that the people of the United States do not know more about South America," said Capt. Alfredo R. Searle of the Chilean navy. Captain Searle spent two years as naval attaché of the Chilean legation in London, and is on his way to resume service at home.

"The impression seems general over here that South America is made up principally of the countries in the north, as Ecuador, Bolivia, Colombia and others, when they should know that the greatness of South America lies in the republics of Chile, Brazil and Argentina," continued Captain Searle.

"Chile has a navy of 15 battleships, mostly cruisers, with a naval enlistment of 5,000 men. Brazil has two dreadnoughts of 20,000 tons each, and Argentina, within a few months, will have the largest dreadnought in the world, a ship of 28,000 tons. The army in Chile numbers 5,000, but we could easily raise 200,000 men, most of whom would be well drilled. In the revolution of 1891 there were 30,000 troops engaged on each side. Both Brazil and Argentina could muster fully as large a number.

"There are other things Americans do not know about Chile, perhaps. We raise the best quality of wheat in South America, and make a grade of flour that will compete with the best this country can make. Our wool in Liverpool is frequently sold as the highest grade received there, equal in every respect to the Australian wool."

CHEERFULNESS IS A DUTY

Laughter Will Dispel Worries and Do Much to Help One Retain His Health.

It is the duty of mankind, even in depressing circumstances, to strive to be cheerful. It is the general belief
that if a man is not naturally light-hearted he cannot make himself so.

Yet this is far from being the case,
and there is many a man who is at present a weary burden to his relatives, miserable through the carking
care of some bodily ailment perhaps
or some worldly misfortune, who, if he had grown up with the idea that
to be cheerful in all circumstances
was one of the first duties of life,
might still see a pleasant enough
world around him.

The worries of a morose person
will shorten his days, and the general
justice of nature's arrangement provides that his early departure should entail no long regrets.

On the other hand, the man who can laugh keeps his health. To the perfectly healthy laughter comes often. Too commonly though, as childhood is left behind, the habit
fades, and a half smile is the most
that visits the thought-lined mouth
of a modern man or woman. People become more and more burdened
with the accumulations of knowledge
and with the weighty responsibilities
of life, but they should still spare
time to laugh.

WORSE

Parson Hayrick—Silas, I hope
you didn't fall into temptation when you were in the city.

Silas Cornstossel—No; but I fell

LESSONS FROM THE WAITER.

A busy man who grabs his noon
lunch at one of the dairy lunch
rooms, where one gets what he wishes
at the counter and takes it to a chair
to eat, ordered a roast beef sandwich
and a piece of pie, says the Indianapolis News. The sandwich was damp with gravy—too damp to be handled in his fingers and he had no
knife—only a fork. He went to the counter and asked: "Will you please give me a knife?"

"Ain't got no knives," replied the man at the counter. "Eat your pie
with your fork."

LAUGHING HIMSELF OUT.

A man who was arrested in Bre-
men for thieving and sent to prison
for a year, began laughing as soon as he was locked up. For a week or so he was locked upon as a jolly fellow, but then his laughter began to tire. He was finally told that if he didn't saw
it off he would be punished, and as he couldn't stop laughing he was punished. It did no good, however.
While he couldn't tell what tickled
him, the prisoner kept up his merriment and rendered himself such a nuisance that he was pardoned out
and told to take his laugh elsewhere.

WHERE IGNORANCE IS BLISS

If You Are Proud of Your Furs, Don't Investigate, Let It Go
at That

"If you think you have furs that are particularly fine it is sometimes
more satisfactory to keep on thinking so rather than to start to investigate," a wise woman was heard to say the other day.

"Now there is So-and-so, who has been priding herself upon the beauty
and the excellent quality of a sable stole and mink she owns. She got most of the skins in them some years ago and says she paid $500 apiece
for them. She went last year to a fur dealer's and he told her that the skins could not be duplicated for less than $800 apiece. Not long ago she bought some new skins which looked
just as fine as the old ones and had her furs made over. So she figured out that her furs were worth $20,- 000.

"The other day she had occasion
to go to another furrier for the first time and she asked him what he thought her stole and mink were worth. He looked over them carefully and figured that they were worth about $8,000. She thought she had the finest sables, but he told her he could duplicate them for $300 apiece. Now all her joy in her furs is quite gone."

HOW THEY MEASURE TIME

Strange Methods Employed by Various Indian Tribes in Keeping
the Time.

To ascertain the time at night the Apache Indians employed a gourd
on which the stars of the heavens
were marked. As the constellations rose in the sky the Indian referred
to his gourd and found out the hour.
By turning the gourd around he could tell the order in which the constellations might be expected to appear.

The hill people of Assam reckon
time and distance by the number of quids of betel nut chewed. It will be remembered how, according to Washington Irving, the Dutch colonial assembly was invariably dismissed at the last puff of the third
pipe of tobacco of Governor Wouter Van Twiller.

A Montagnis Indian of Canada
will set up a tall stick in the snow
when traveling ahead of friends who are to follow. He marks with his foot the line of shadow cast, and by the change in the angle of the shadow the oncoming party can tell on arriving at the spot about how far ahead the leader is.—Harper's Weekly.

THE AMERICAN FAMILY.

The American people, almost instinctively, have turned away from the old domestic policy. A large family implies a home in the old-fashioned sense, but the urban life of America necessitates a departure from the home as thus defined. The cramped apartment, with those ministering angels, the kitchenette, the
baker, the laundryman and delicatessen shop, are not adapted to numerous children. Children often are not wanted. In fact, a man with a large family
finds it difficult even to secure living accommodations in many cities. Thus, in great numbers of communities, the social order has passed beyond the conviction that
the large family is a normal and necessary condition, and has adapted itself to a scale of living based on small families, or on none at all.—
William S. Rossiter, in Atlantic.

INCREASED TEA CONSUMPTION.

Fourth place among the tea-exporting countries of the world is taken by Java, which follows closely after Japan. British India with Ceylon is first and China second.
Java is rapidly gaining on Japan,
for the cultivation of tea is increasing steadily and the product is gaining in quality. Java tea can now be kept for upward of two years and even improves in flavor by the keeping. This has been found out already in Australia.

DISAPPOINTMENT.

"Oh, yes, but she was terribly disappointed in a way. You know he

Rose of the North

By Ella M. Bangs

Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.

Dark, wistful-eyed, slender and clad in the simplest cotton garments, Felipe Rubio stood outside the entrance to La Academia de San Carlos, as he had stood many times before, hoping that in some way he might be permitted to enter the building. He had no money to pay his way, so it might be that a miracle would take place, for had he not played Our Lady of Guadalupe to let him pass within the walls of which as yet he had only dreamed? Still no miracle came, and it seemed to the boy that he had waited much longer than the twelve years which composed his life.

On this morning, however, something unusual did happen, for as Felipe still hung about the entrance a party of tourists approached, and the boy's quick eye saw that they were not of his country. They were doubtless from that other republic north of Mexico, and of which he had sometimes heard. A little girl, rosy-cheeked, blue-eyed and flaxen-haired, danced beside her father and spoke in a language he did not understand. With an adroit movement he followed the party, for he was not without the hope that he might slip in among them unnoticed by the attendant.

This, however, was not his first attempt of this kind, and he was promptly recognized and thrust out. So pleading a look was in his face that the visitors remarked it, and a man put an inquiry to their conductor.

"Oh, the little vagabond is trying to get into the academy without paying," was the response.

Conversation followed, in which the white-clad little girl had a voice. Her father smiled indulgently.

Lost to All, Save the Wonderful Pictures.

"Well, Isabel, if you wish it," he said, and the next moment, to his unspeakable delight, Felipe was told that he might go in with the others.

He turned to thank the gentleman to whose kindness he was indebted when that person, with a smile, pointed to the child at his side. With a graceful sweep of his little body Felipe exclaimed what was in English: "Thank you, thank you, Rose of the North."

"He thanks you, and calls you Rose of the North," their conductor explained.

Already the boy had turned from them, and was soon lost to all but the wonderful pictures that spread around him. This was what he had longed for, to see these paintings, for then he believed he could make a picture himself. Here were the works of Titian, of Murillo, Van Dyke and others of whom he had never heard, but the one object which he was most eager to see was the painting of Felix Parra, Mexico's own artist.

At last he stood before it, forgetting all else as he gazed at the strong figures, the priest clapping his crucifix, the Indian woman at his feet, the touches of red in her rebozo and the stain, the life blood of the man fallen beside her, being the only colors to stand out amid the softer tints of the painting. Long the boy stood here and again as long before Velasco's beautiful "Valley of Mexico." Was it possible for men to paint like this? Felipe had no thought of time, and it was not until the gallery was about to be closed for the day that he left the building.

"Without doubt, you have enjoyed yourself," an attendant remarked.

"Si, senor," was the response, for he had no words to express what he felt. He seemed to have been in another world. He was tired now, very tired, and hungry, no doubt, but it had been the happiest day of his life. The inspiration of it all stayed with him, and he dreamed of it often sitting apart from his childish companions in their play. He dreamed, too, of wonderful pictures which he had never seen, but which he himself would paint one day.

It was months later when an artist saw some of his crude drawings, and recognizing talent offered to help him. His work was encouraged, and in one way and another he worked out, surmounting obstacles, till his teachers declared they could teach him nothing more.

He was an artist and it came about that he, Felipe Rubio, was to have a picture exhibited in the Academy of San Carlos. To this, his greatest work as yet, he gave the name "A Dream of Achievement," and in it he had pictured himself, a small, barefooted, bare-headed boy, sitting on the ground with hands clasped about his knees, and wistful face upraised, and dark eyes that seemed gazing at beautiful visions that floated vaguely in the upper distance, while in more pronounced shades stood out the figures of his playmates about him.

He was at work upon another painting. This showed a flaxen-haired little girl standing half smiling as her blue eyes looked into those of the spectator. There was color in her cheeks, and in her white dress she presented a dainty little creation, the original of which was not to be found among natives of the artist's own city. That he realized the truth of this was shown by the name he had given his work. Felipe called this painting, "Rose of the North." It was painted from memory, but memory had served him well.

Fifteen years had passed since the day when this little Rose of the North had been the means of opening up to him a new world, and now Senor Felipe Rubio would see other countries, the work of artists other than those to be seen at San Carlos.

He sailed to the old eastern lands, and at length reached once more the western world, and there came a day when he found himself in New York. In this metropolis of the new world he decided to remain for the present. He sent for his paintings, and in due time they arrived and were placed on exhibition, and soon it became quite the thing for society to visit the studio of the young Mexican artist.

Among the visitors one day there came a middle-aged man and his daughter, a young lady whose golden hair seemed to have captured all the sunshine of her sunny life. Felipe gave her first a long glance of purely professional admiration, then as her deep blue eyes turned to his, he looked again with a more personal approval and stirring of memory. Of whom did she remind him? There was an elusive familiarity about her smile.

The visitors stood looking at the "Dream of Achievement," when the man said, laughingly: "See, Isabel, here's your little Mexican."

The girl was puzzled as to her father's meaning; not so Felipe, who had overheard the remark.

Isabel was the name of the child to whom he owed so much, his Rose of the North. It was she; he could not doubt it. Why had he not recognized her at once? Felipe had acquired many accomplishments since their first meeting; among them was the knowledge of the English language.

Now, moving over beside the man, he asked: "The gentleman has seen my country, Mexico, has he not?" "Yes, years ago," was the reply, "when my daughter here was a child."

"Like this," said the artist, drawing the man's attention to another painting. It was his "Rose of the North."

"The visitor gazed a moment in growing astonishment. 'Isabel!' he exclaimed; then turning to Felipe: 'What does this mean, sir?'"

"It means that I was the little boy who waited outside the doors of San Carlos until this little girl, your daughter—this Rose of the North—brought about my admission. My life work dates from that day. I am most happy to express my thanks once more."

"Do you hear this, Isabel?" the man asked, turning to his daughter. She heard, indeed, and the beautiful color deepened in her cheeks till it was no wonder that an artist should find it hard to look away.

Soon they seemed to be old acquaintances. A little later Felipe was invited to their home, and it was not long before the young man waited upon Mr. Clayton and with true Mexican formality craved the honor of his daughter's hand.

"I begin to think it was foreordained," the father said after they had talked the matter over; "at any rate, go to my daughter, Isabel usually decides such cases for herself."

Only too gladly Felipe went to her. "Is it to be my Rose of the North at last?"

And Isabel's blue eyes answered even before he heard her low spoken words of assent.

The Bishops' Wigs.

Bishops show no inclination to discard the gaiters which, according to the Tailor and Outfit, fitted their legs fairly well at the church congress. But they have shed the wig which at one time weighed heavily on the episcopal brow. When wigs ceased to be generally worn several bishops endeavored to obtain the royal permission to dispense with them. George IV. would not allow this, but when the Bishop of London asked his successor if he might appear before him without a wig, William replied that "the bishop is not to wear a wig on my account; I dislike it as much as he does, and shall be glad to see the whole bench wear their own hair." Bishop Blomfield thereupon discarded his wig, and was imitated by his episcopal brethren.

DR. F. A. COOK LECTURES

On His Exploration Trip To The Arctic Regions
in 1908.

TELLS ALL ABOUT THE POLE

And Pays His Respects To
Capt. Peary Who Disputed
His Claim.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the noted Arctic Explorer lectured at the Tabernacle last night to a good crowd.

Dr. Cook told a story of thrilling interest of his hardships in the Arctic regions. He was one month in reaching the pole after leaving the last trace of "Known Land," but his return consumed more than a year. He was caught in drifting ice floes and carried many hundreds of miles out of his way; he and his Esquimaux were forced to eat their dogs and nearly starved to death before they were rescued.

He gave a full description of his journey to the pole. He told of the grinding ice fields, of the life in the Polar regions, and of the tremendous hardships which he was forced to overcome.

Only the latter part of his lecture was devoted to his controversy, and to it he gave but a few minutes.

In the course of his remarks he said:

"Commander Peary undoubtedly reached the North Pole, but nearly a year after I did. Mr. Peary was in New York drinking cocktails when I was fighting my way through the ice.

"Mr. Peary had always been my friend. I had accompanied him on his Polar exploration. He was a politician, however and I was not. He was looking for retirement with the title of rear admiral, and in order to procure the retirement and title he and his friends deemed it necessary to discredit my claims; to show that Peary only reached the pole because the campaign of mudslinging and bribery of which I was the victim.

"But I now have the proofs and what is more, I have legal documents which will prove the existence of the frauds practiced against me."

Big Show For France.

Paris, Jan. 22.—A total eclipse of the sun—an event which can be seen in France only once in every 360 years—is predicted for 1912 by the French astronomers.

M. Charles Nordmann of the Observatory of Paris writes that "this phenomenon will take place on April 17, about mid-day, when the sun will be entirely covered by the moon, causing absolute darkness for six seconds.

W. W. Barbee, of Oak Grove, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Lee J. Barbee, of Graham, Va., who had been on a visit to him, left Saturday for Little Rock, Ark., where they will visit their brother, Dennis Barbee.

BUY YOUR GROCERIES AT FORBES' IN 1912.

Why not make this one of your "resolutions" for the new year? You want to save all you can, of course; that's why we suggest that you come and try trading with us once. There are other reasons too--and they are almost as important as the saving proposition. For instance--we have the newest and freshest stock of groceries in town, no old shelf-worn, dusty, dirty stuff; we buy in the largest quantities and pay spot cash for same. And as to our prices, although we "don't raise much fuss" about it, WE ALWAYS MEET COMPETITION on anything in our line. Now if you don't believe we do this, call us up at any time and see. We could give you many other reasons why we are "just as nice" as the other fellows, but we'd rather show you. So come give us a trial anyway.

STATISTICS OF SUICIDE

Sixteen People of Every 100, 000 Annually Kill Themselves In America.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Fewer people committed suicide during 1910 than in 1909, according to the latest statistics on the subject announced today by Dr. Cressy L. Wilbur, chief statistician for vital statistics of the United States. The death rate from suicide for 1910 was 16 per 100,000 of population in the census bureau's death registration area, which comprises about one-half of the country's population and covers twenty-two states and a number of large cities in other states. The rate was 16.5 in 1909. There were 8,590 suicides in 1910.

Suicide by firearms was the favorite method of self-destruction and showed an increase over 1909. Poison was a close second. Methods employed were detailed as follows: Firearms, 2,561; poison, 2,456; hanging or strangulation, 1,265;

asphyxiation, 941; drowning, 517; cutting or piercing instruments, 544; jumping from high places, 187; crushing, 88; and other means, 81.

California led the states with twenty-nine suicides per 100,000 of population, while Maryland 10.3, had the lowest rate.

AMUSEMENTS

"A GIRL OF THE MOUNTAINS."
O. E. Wee's reconstructed, redressed and generally revolutionized "A Girl of the Mountains," will be presented at Holland's Opera House January 23, (tonight). All the best features have been retained and many new and novel effects have been added. The author has made an exceptionally strong society drama of love and adventure and has chosen a daring subject, but it is so human, so true to life and so skillfully handled that the most impartial critics have only words of praise for "A Girl of the Mountains." The play is absorbing, interesting and original. Its idea is big and the dialogue is rich in action, dramatic quality and originality. A magnificent scenic display will be offered.

DR. LEN G. BROUGHTON ACCEPTS LONDON CALL

Noted Minister Resigns the Pastorate at Atlanta Which He Has Held for Years.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 22.—Dr. Len G. Broughton, pastor of the Baptist Tabernacle, the first institutional church to be founded in the south, Sunday, tendered his resignation to the congregation, to become effective April 1st. He will go to the pastorate of Christ church, London, England, succeeding Dr. F. B. Myer, another widely known divine.

Dr. Broughton has preached at Christ church during his vacation for several years and accepts the pastorate in response to the second call.

The February Strand Magazine.

The February Strand contains many articles of interest, foremost among them being one by Dr. William Brown, entitled "Is Love a Disease?" According to Dr. Brown it is, and should be treated as such. Another article of special interest is: "Who are the Ten Greatest Men Now Alive?" The question was put to a large number of celebrities and Americans may be interested to learn that in every list sent in the name of Thomas Edison appears. And only second in popularity comes that of Theodore Roosevelt. "Lip-Reading" is fully explained, by C. Sibley Haycock, and an added interest is given to the article by the many photographs which accompany the text. "How the King Works," which is written by a member of the royal household, proves that George is no shirker and labors as hard as any of us. The fiction consists of a dozen short stories by such popular writers as Morley Roberts, Richard Marsh, Mrs. Philip Champion de Crespigny, Austin Phillips, etc. For the youngsters there is a series of fairy stories translated from the Russian and specially selected by the Czar for his own children.
